Entertainer Tom O'Connor hosts successful business lunch at Castillo Son Vida

Tom O'Connor on stage for the after dinner speech

One of Britain's most popular and funniest comedians, Tom O'Connor, hosted a hugely successful business lunch at the Castillo Son Vida Hotel this month.

With over a hundred and twenty guests, organiser Kevin Marsh of Azur Productions, Monaco, said how pleased he was at the success of the occasion.

Starting with a relaxed and lazy champagne and cocktail reception on the beautiful terrace of the Son Vida, guests met the star of the occasion on a very informal basis, where he was happy to have his photograph taken, and sign autographs.

Last month Celebrity exclusively interviewed Tom (Issue 51), in which he spoke frankly about his life and his career. Now this top comedian and quiz-game show host was here again to entertain guests with what was a hilarious after dinner speech. Tom is an old fashioned stand-up comedian and his stories, anecdotes, jokes, and humour had each and every VIP table in laughter. With an excellent menu, wine list and service, the lunchtime became something of a very special occasion.

The idea behind these special lunches is to put together a very elite group in a relaxed, informal and entertaining environment. Targeting the like-minded business community, entrepreneurs and high profile residents, it quickly became an occasion for networking, especially with complimentary Cava still being served long after the formalities had ended.

A entertaining and interesting event, the next we are advised is to be hosted by none other than the former BBC political editor and multi award winner, John Sergeant – watch this space for further information.
